Dear Sir, In reperance to the first inquiry contained in your note, I answer, The Memoir of James Jackson was examined by the Committee appointed by the Board to read books not published by the Society - Such a committee you know, existed when you was connected with the Board, As to the second inquiry, I can only say, That the Committee are more or less constantly engaged in reading books, some of which they recommend & some they do not, In reperence to this particular one, doubtless, they found what they regarded sufficient reason for declining to recommend it - This is as definite an answer as I can able to give you

Yours truly E. C. Dean
